About the International Trade Administration

The International Trade Administration (ITA) impacts job creation by assisting small business exporters in Washington, DC as well as 108 U.S. locations and over 70 countries around the world.

ITA conducts global trade events, attracts inward investment from around the world, and promotes fair international procurement. Our industry experts provide quantitative and qualitative data to support exports, and we facilitate advisory groups to ensure that U.S. industry has a voice in government policy.

Additionally, ITA closely monitors and enforces trade agreements to ensure a level playing field for U.S. businesses.
